ABSTRAK

Tujuan dari penelitian ini adalah untuk mengeksplorasi faktor-faktor yang memengaruhi kinerja karyawan, dengan motivasi berperan sebagai variabel perantara. Metode Structural Equation Modeling (SEM) digunakan dalam penelitian ini dengan menggunakan Smart PLS versi 3.0 untuk menganalisis data yang dikumpulkan dari perusahaan-perusahaan di sektor real estate. Hasil penelitian menunjukkan bahwa lingkungan kerja, kompetensi, dan kompensasi secara signifikan dan positif memengaruhi kinerja karyawan, sementara motivasi memiliki pengaruh signifikan dan negatif terhadap kinerja. Meskipun demikian, ditemukan bahwa lingkungan kerja memiliki pengaruh negatif yang tidak signifikan terhadap motivasi, yang berbeda dengan kompetensi dan kompensasi yang menunjukkan pengaruh positif yang signifikan terhadap motivasi. Selain itu, lingkungan kerja dan kompetensi menunjukkan pengaruh negatif yang tidak signifikan terhadap kinerja melalui motivasi. Terakhir, ditemukan bahwa lingkungan kerja memiliki pengaruh negatif yang signifikan terhadap kinerja bagi perusahaan di lokasi penelitian, memberikan wawasan yang berharga untuk membuat keputusan yang tepat terkait lingkungan kerja, kompetensi, kompensasi, dan kinerja karyawan. Namun demikian, penting untuk mengakui keterbatasan dari penelitian ini dan merekomendasikan penelitian di masa depan untuk mempertimbangkan variabel tambahan yang dapat memengaruhi kinerja karyawan.

ABSTRACT

Understanding the intricate factors influencing employee performance, encompassing the work environment, motivation, competencies, and compensation, is pivotal in effective human resource management. This comprehension aids companies in identifying areas for improvement, formulating robust human resource policies, fostering supportive work environments, and crafting compensation systems that optimally motivate employees, ensuring the organization's long-term success and sustainability. The primary objective of the study is a thorough investigation into the factors impacting employee performance, with motivation playing a key intermediary role. Employing a quantitative approach, the research utilizes Structural Equation Modelling (SEM) through Smart PLS version 3.0, focusing on personnel within the Public Relations Department of PT. XYZ. Findings reveal significant positive impacts of the work environment, competencies, and compensation on employee performance, with motivation exhibiting a significant negative influence. Interestingly, the study notes an insignificant negative impact of the work environment on motivation, contrasting with the positive effects of competencies and compensation on motivation. The study contributes theoretically by exploring motivation as an intervening factor in the real estate sector, offering practical insights for companies in the study location to make informed decisions about the work environment, competencies, compensation, and employee performance. Despite recognizing limitations, the study recommends future research to consider additional variables, enhancing the comprehensiveness of subsequent investigations.
