

MOTTO

“Non scholae, sed vitae discimus.”

A Latin term that was told by the writer’s father, meaning: “Not for school, but for life do we learn.”, To always remind her that she goes to school because she needs it for life provisions, not solely for the sake of the institute.

